Spell levels and costs

Changed levels and costs. Kept faction probabilities as close as possible. Town portal has moved to fire to balance the schools. All mass spells cost twice as much mana as their advanced version. Advanced and expert town portal, resurrection and berserk also cost more. The goal is to make spellcasting more varied and interesting. To do this I try to make the cost and level of spell to correlate better with its power and usefulness. That means that weaker spells like land mine or fortune are now cast much more often as you get them before more powerful spells like haste, blind and bless. The higher cost and levels for the power spells also means that might heroes need to invest more into magic. You can not only get expert earth and slow and call it a day.

Hero classes

The stronger spells have become more expensive. To afford the more expensive spells all magic hero classes except elementalists get +1 spell power and knowledge. This keeps them unique while making the difference between might and magic larger.

The only unsalvageable secondary skill is eagle eye. I removed it for classes that lack heroes with it and limited it to 2 for the classes that have heroes with it. To keep the totals at 112 correct they get points in other SS instead.
